

I originally debated having cuffs on the bottom of the trousers to echo the triangular panel in the original design, however after sampling this I decided that it doesn't fit the style of the trousers. Even with pressing and edge stitching, the cuff bulks the hem and sticks out of the tapered effect of the trousers. Instead of using the bulky cuffs I've instead decided to blind hem the bottom of the trousers by hand, this means that no stitching will be visible on the outside so the hem won't disrupt the flow of the fabric.

